Call to Family, Community, and Participation

“Families transform the world and history,” Pope Francis stated in his address to bishops taking part in the 2015 World Meeting of Families. Most people are born into, live in and participate in family. People learn to live in a community by first living in a family. They learn how to participate in the community and the larger world through examples from intimate family life.

“The family is the fundamental locus of the covenant between the Church and God’s creation, with that creation which God blessed on the last day with a family. Without the family, not even the Church would exist. Nor could she be what she is called to be, namely ‘a sign and instrument of communion with God and of the unity of the entire human race.’”

The key Catholic social teaching (CST) principle of family, community and participation is woven almost seamlessly throughout the church’s teachings. Catholics are the family of God—community—and, as such, are impelled throughout their lives to participate as dynamic, engaged human beings.

“The family is our ally, our window to the world; the family is the proof of an irrevocable blessing of God destined for all the children who in every age are born into this difficult yet beautiful creation which God has asked us to serve!”

It is hoped that this resource will be a source of rich and fertile material for the League and its members.

As the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops wrote in its 1986 pastoral letter on Catholic social teaching and the economy, “For the laity holiness is achieved in the midst of the world, in family, in community, in friendships, in work, in leisure, in citizenship.”

Call to Family

“For believers, the family, the cell of communion on which society is founded, resembles a ‘domestic church in miniature’ called to reveal God’s love to the world” (Pope Benedict XVI).

Subsidiarity

“A society that honours the principle of subsidiarity liberates people from a sense of despondency and hopelessness, granting them the freedom to engage with one another in the spheres of commerce, politics and culture” (Pope Benedict XVI).

The Compendium of the Social Doctrine of the Church notes that, “Men and women must respond to the gift of salvation not with a partial, abstract or merely verbal acceptance, but with the whole of their lives — in every relationship that defines life... to make the liberating word of the Gospel resound in the complex worlds of production, labour, business, finance, trade, politics, law, culture, social communications, where men and women live.”

Church Documents and Teachings

Catechism Paragraph	Quote
1883	"Socialization also presents dangers. Excessive intervention by the state can threaten personal freedom and initiative. The teaching of the Church has elaborated the principle of subsidiarity , according to which 'a community of a higher order should not interfere in the internal life of a community of a lower order, depriving the latter of its functions, but rather should support it in case of need and help to co-ordinate its activity with the activities of the rest of society, always with a view to the common good.'"
1884	"God has not willed to reserve to himself all exercise of power. He entrusts to every creature the functions it is capable of performing, according to the capacities of its own nature. This mode of governance ought to be followed in social life. The way God acts in governing the world, which bears witness to such great regard for human freedom, should inspire the wisdom of those who govern human communities. They should behave as ministers of divine providence."
1885	"The principle of subsidiarity is opposed to all forms of collectivism. It sets limits for state intervention. It aims at harmonizing the relationships between individuals and societies. It tends toward the establishment of true international order."

Quotes

Source, Date	Quote
Pope Benedict XVI. Caritas in Veritate . 2009.	“Subsidiarity respects personal dignity by recognizing in the person a subject who is always capable of giving something to others” (57).
Pope Francis. Laudato Si’ . 2015.	“Let us keep in mind the principle of subsidiarity, which grants freedom to develop the capabilities present at every level of society, while also demanding a greater sense of responsibility for the common good from those who wield greater power” (196).
Pope Pius XI. Quadragesimo Anno . 1931.	“... That most weighty principle, which cannot be set aside or changed, remains fixed and unshaken in social philosophy: Just as it is gravely wrong to take from individuals what they can accomplish by their own initiative and industry and give it to the community, so also it is an injustice and at the same time a grave evil and disturbance of right order to assign to a greater and higher association what lesser and subordinate organizations can do” (79).
Rudy Carrasco	“An issue or problem should be dealt with by the people who are closest to it.”

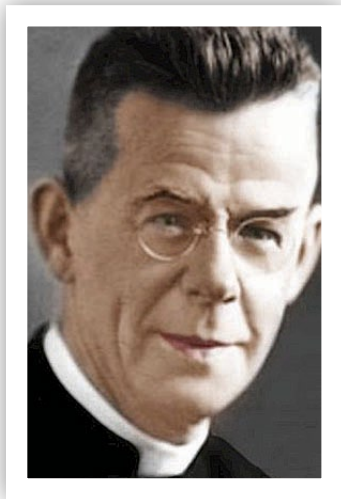

Scripture Quotes

Scripture Source	Quote
Ephesians 4:16	“... From whom the whole body, joined and knitted together by every ligament with which it is equipped, as each part is working properly, promotes the body’s growth in building itself up in love.”
2 Thessalonians 3:10-13	“For even when we were with you, we gave you this command: Anyone unwilling to work should not eat. For we hear that some of you are living in idleness, mere busybodies, not doing any work. Now such persons we command and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ to do their work quietly and to earn their own living. Brothers and sisters, do not be weary in doing what is right.”
1 Timothy 5:3-8	“Honour widows who are really widows. If a widow has children or grandchildren, they should first learn their religious duty to their own family and make some repayment to their parents; for this is pleasing in God’s sight. The real widow, left alone, has set her hope on God and continues in supplications and prayers night and day; but the widow who lives for pleasure is dead even while she lives. Give these commands as well, so that they may be above reproach. And whoever does not provide for relatives, and especially for family members, has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever.”

Prophets Among Us

Cardinal Joseph Leo Cardijn (1882-1967)

Joseph Leo Cardijn was a Belgian priest who dedicated his life to the working people. He was an underground activist during World War I and was imprisoned in 1916. His activism for workers traces back to 1912. In 1919, he organized the Young Trade Unionists, which became a national organization in 1924. The movement was renamed the Young Christian Workers and sanctioned by Pope Pius XI in 1925.

Cardinal Cardijn was beatified in 2014 and titled “Servant of God,” indicating the first step toward possible canonization. His writings were foundational to the development of principles of Catholic social teaching. Many of his works are accessible to readers at josephcardijn.com/en/home.

St. Marie of the Incarnation (1599-1672)

Marie founded the first Ursuline Monastery in Quebec, now a National Historic Site of Canada, in 1642. Marie spent the remainder of her life working to educate all the women—French and native Canadian—in Quebec. Marie was a prolific writer, penning over 20,000 letters in her lifetime.

St. Marguerite Bourgeoys (1620-1700)

Marguerite established a school for Indigenous girls in Montreal. At the age of 69, she walked from Montreal to Quebec in response to the bishop’s request to establish a community of her sisters in that city. By the time she died, she was referred to as the “Mother of the Colony.” Marguerite was canonized in 1982.

St. Titus Brandsma (1881-1942)

– Carmelite priest, journalist and professor of philosophy/theology

Titus Brandsma was named the spiritual advisor to Holland’s Catholic newspapers in the 1930s. In 1940 when Nazis invaded Holland, he continued to firmly speak out against “the new paganism” overtaking Germany, focusing mainly on the Nazi oppression of Jewish people.

In December 1941, the Nazi regime declared an edict that all Dutch newspapers were obliged to run advertisements and propaganda in support of its causes. In response, Brandsma began to personally deliver a letter from the bishops conference of the Netherlands ordering editors of more than a dozen Catholic newspapers not to print official Nazi documents.

He was arrested on January 19th and held prisoner in several different locations until being sent to the Dachau concentration camp in June. Although his health quickly deteriorated, he maintained a prayerful equilibrium. He was put to death by lethal injection as part of the Nazi medical experimentation program on July 26, 1942.

Pedro Casaldàliga (1928-2020)

– Advocate, bishop and liberationist

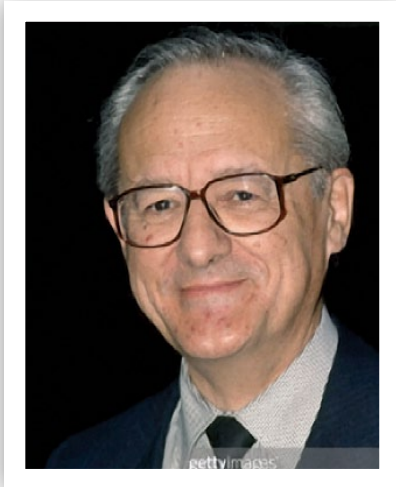

Pedro Casaldàliga was born in Spain and ordained a priest on May 31, 1952. He began missionary work in Brazil in 1968, received his episcopal ordination on October 23, 1971, and served as bishop of São Félix do Araguaia in the Amazon region of Mato Grosso (1971-2005). In this area, large sections of the jungle were carved out to make room for vast plantations, favouring wealthy landowners and impoverishing landless peasants—making them beholden to the landlords. It was to these peasants and Indigenous peoples of the area that Casaldàliga devoted his ministry.

Casaldàliga was frequently threatened with exile or death by Brazil’s military dictatorship. He was summoned to Rome in 1988 to answer questions about his espousal of liberation theology in South America.

“Prayer is hope’s breathing. When we stop praying, we stop hoping” (Pedro Casaldàliga).

Blessed Pierre-Lucien Claverie (1938-1996) – Bishop, Dominican, martyr

Pierre-Lucien Claverie was born as a fourth-generation French settler in Algeria. When he travelled to France to pursue a college education, he witnessed protests against the French presence in Algeria. As a result, he realized his experience growing up was influenced by what he later called his experience in “the colonial bubble.”

Upon completing his education and ordination to the priesthood in 1965, Claverie returned to Algeria—now independent following a bitter war. Upon his return, he learned Arabic, studied Islam and worked for dialogue among Christians and Muslims, hoping this dialogue would lead to peace.

Appointed bishop of Oran in 1981, Claverie was committed to human solidarity, emphasizing relationships with everyone, everywhere. He was even called “the bishop of the Muslims” by Muslims themselves. On August 1, 1996, he and his driver were killed in a bombing by Islamic extremists.

Marion Theresa Moses (1936-2020) – Physician

In 1966 Marion Moses was studying for a second master’s degree at the University of California, Berkeley, when she saw a notice on a bulletin board seeking medical volunteers to assist the United Farm Workers of America (UFWA) union. Already equipped with a master’s degree in nursing, she decided to try it. What she planned as a weekend turned into five years and changed her life forever.

Working for the union (Delano, California) meant accepting union wages—$5.00 per week plus room and board. But from the poor, Moses learned invaluable lessons, including that “... the struggle for health care is inseparable from the struggle for human dignity.” She became a trusted confidant of the union leader, Cesar Chavez, tending to him during his long water fasts. In 1967, he urged her to go to the East coast to organize the consumer boycott of table grapes and raise support for the union. In 1970, the successful boycott helped the UFWA win contracts that included banning the pesticide DDT (dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane) in the fields. Chavez then encouraged her to return to school to become a doctor.

While serving as a medical resident in New York, Moses came to serve as Dorothy Day’s physician, speaking to her almost every day and treating her congestive heart failure in the last years of her life. In 1983, now an expert on pesticides, she returned to work for the union for three years. Then, in the late 1980s, she co-founded the Pesticide Education Center, serving as director until her retirement in 2016.

“Cesar [Chavez] was a living example that if you never forget the people, if you don’t get distracted, and can keep your sense of social justice intact, you won’t get lost along the way”
(Marion Moses).

Chiune Sugihara (1900-1986) – Japanese diplomat

Chiune Sugihara served in the Imperial Japanese Army from 1920 to 1922 as a second lieutenant and resigned from his commission in November 1922. The Japanese Foreign Ministry then recruited him to Harbin, China, where he became an expert on Russian affairs.

In 1939, Chiune Sugihara became vice-consul for the Japanese Consulate in Kaunas, Lithuania. As a result of the war, many Jews from across Europe came to Lithuania seeking exit visas. Ignoring official Japanese orders, he issued a visa to anyone who requested it, despite his post not being responsible for this service. His disobedience was eventually discovered, and he was ordered to leave the consulate.

Chiune Sugihara was imprisoned in 1944 by the Soviets for 18 months. When he returned to Japan, he was held in disgrace, forcing him to take on many menial jobs. He was awarded the honour of Righteous Among the Nations for his efforts by the State of Israel. It is believed that several thousand Jews were saved because of his actions.

“I may have disobeyed my government, but if I hadn’t I would have been disobeying God”
(Chiune Sugihara).

Blessed Maria Troncatti (1883-1969) – Missionary

Maria Troncatti was born in Brescia, Italy. Early on, she felt drawn to religious life, and in 1908, she made her profession in the Salesian Sisters. After taking a course in health care, she served as a Red Cross nurse during World War I—an experience that would serve her well in her later life.

In 1922 Troncatti was sent to work in Ecuador. Her mission was among the remote Shuar tribe in the Amazon. Upon her arrival, the chief insisted—on pain of death—that she heal his daughter, who had been shot in a local conflict. Fortunately, she was able to treat the wound and nurse the girl back to health, thus winning the gratitude and respect of her new flock. This was not the end of her ordeals or the perils of life in the Amazon. Yet, as she wrote, “A look at the crucifix gives me life and the courage to work.” She became beloved by the Shuar people, whom she served as a nurse and doctor, as well as a catechist and evangelist, while defending them against the encroachments of settlers.

After more than 40 years in the Amazon, friends and family urged Troncatti to return to Italy, at least for a visit, but she declined. “Every day I am happier in my religious and missionary vocation!” she wrote. She died in a plane crash on August 25, 1969, and was beatified in 2012.

“The Lord does not leave us without rays of sun among the clouds and storms that sometimes surround us”
(Maria Troncatti).
