PURPOSE

Members of The Catholic Women's League of Canada are in a perfect position to be leaders in enhancing Indigenous relationships within the church and society because of the large membership of Catholic women, structure as an organization and focus on connectedness. Doing so would be in keeping with the League's core purpose, values and mission statement. The need for action is critical and central to the League from the definition of what the League is as an organization, from the perspective of the dignity of human persons and respect for diverse cultures.

It is important to provide resources to members across the country. For Indigenous members seeking information on their heritage, the organizations listed first may provide helpful information on their websites or, if contacted, may be able to assist in referrals to other sources. Non-Indigenous members looking to learn about Indigenous communities in their area could contact an organization in their region of the country to get Indigenous community names and contacts to then make personal contact in their locale. After all, in-person sharing provides the best opportunity for learning and building relationships.

Learning for some is a personal experience, and some members may prefer traditional educational environments, written works, visual aids or a mix of all media. The remainder of this document provides references to books, films, videos, Catholic organizations, papal documents, prayers and more to hopefully assist any member or council wishing to develop a relationship with Indigenous peoples in Canada. As a first step, members are encouraged to select those that first interest them or their council.

INTRODUCTION

Background

As followers of Christ, it is essential for all members to be attentive to the quality of relationships that exist between them and through the organization. The history of colonization and residential school trauma makes the relationship of Indigenous members with the League unique. For Indigenous members, this requires respect for their unique history, experiences of trauma and spiritual expression. Members are called to give life to the apology by Pope Francis in his penitential pilgrimage in 2022 to Canada and to build on the 94 calls to action of truth and reconciliation. Members are called to be agents of change through listening, education, and changing hearts and attitudes. This important commitment was encouraged by Saint John Paul II on his pastoral visit to Canada in 1984. He spoke strongly of the deep debt of gratitude the whole church owes to Indigenous peoples, whose welcoming of the gospel contributes profoundly to assisting all Christians to understand the mystery of Christ in new ways (Our Lady of Guadalupe Circle).

Pope Francis has called for a synodal church to enhance understanding of the other. Consistent with this call, deepening relationships with Indigenous peoples will best result from encountering and journeying together. This concept of accompaniment is best described as allyship. Allyship means a person from a privileged group walking behind and beside another who belongs to or identifies with a marginalized group. It is not taking over or determining for the other but rather working with them to help remove systems that challenge their basic rights, equal access and ability to thrive in society. As true allies of Indigenous women, it is to understand and respect “their cultural traditions, religious consciousness and their long-standing ability to decide and control their development programs [to] foster better interaction and cooperation ...” (Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops).

Nicholas Black Elk's Journey to Sainthood*

00:58:15

Judith Ann Zielinski, Christopher Salvador,

vimeo.com/420363725

“The next American to be named a saint may be a Native American holy man, Nicholas Black Elk. A Lakota Sioux medicine man baptized a Catholic, Nicholas integrated his Christianity and Indigenous spirituality, recognizing that one God created all earth’s children and calls them to live as brothers and sisters.”

The documentary “encompasses his entire life and legacy culminating with his family’s request that the Catholic Church declare him a saint.”

INDIGENOUS ROLE MODELS

It is recognized that among Indigenous peoples there are many people who are elders, role models and also those who have been inspirational not only to their communities but to the people of Canada. Following are just a few Indigenous people who are identified in order to start the journey to recognizing the history, leadership, culture, traditions and spirituality of the Indigenous brothers and sisters in Canada.

Adam Beach

Born: November 11, 1972, Ashern, Manitoba

Adam Reuben Beach, is a Saulteaux actor, advocate and motivational speaker and is one of Canada's most successful actors of Indigenous descent. His "efforts to augment the voice of [Indigenous] people are best illustrated by his film school in Winnipeg—the Adam Beach Film Institute—which is aimed at training [Indigenous] students in all aspects of filmmaking, both in front of and behind the camera" (APTN National News).

Nicholas Black Elk

Born: December 1863, Little Powder River, Wyoming

Death: August, 1950, Manderson, South Dakota

"Black Elk is remembered for his many dreams and mystical experiences. The first of these occurred at the age of nine when he fell ill and [laid] unconscious for several days. He had a vision that seemed to predict the future of his tribe and his own role as a medicine man; he was disturbed by some of the things he saw but told no one. Eventually, more visions came, and finally, he told his father about them. By the time, he returned from Canada, his reputation had preceded him as a gifted medicine person, and he was sought after as a healer" (Aktá Lakota Museum & Cultural Center).

Larry Phillip Fontaine

Born: September 20, 1944

Member: Sagkeeng First Nation, Manitoba

Larry Phillip Fontaine, OC, OM is “an Indigenous Canadian leader and former National Chief of the Assembly of First Nations. He best known for his central role in raising public awareness of the Canadian Indian residential school system and pushing to secure Federal and Papal apologies in 2008 and 2022 respectively.” He made key contributions to the defeat of the Meech Lake Accord. “In 2005, Fontaine successfully negotiated the Indian Residential Schools Settlement Agreement, which will mean a financial contribution of more than $5 billion to survivors and programs for them” (Wikipedia).

Chief Dan George

Born: July 24, 1899

Death: September 23, 1981

Birth Name: Geswanouth Slahoot

An easily recognized face in Canada, Chief Dan George was a poet, author, activist and professor and was one of the first activists for Indigenous rights in Canada. At age five, his name was changed when he entered a mission boarding school where speaking his language was discouraged. He sought to increase understanding of the First Nations people among non-Indigenous Canadians.

At the 1967 celebration of the Canadian centennial, he used his poem “Lament for Confederation” to draw attention to European colonization. He is the only Indigenous actor in Canadian history to date with the right to use the title “Chief,” as he served as leader Squamish First Nation of Burrard Inlet (1951–63) and retained the honorary title after his term ended.

Graydon Nicholas

Born: 1946, Tobique, New Brunswick

Graydon Nicholas is a Maliseet descendant and grew up on the Tobique Indian Reserve, and faced challenges in his early years, learning English as his second language. He is a member of the Order of Canada and Order of New Brunswick and has made remarkable contributions to law and public service.

Graydon Nicholas became the first Indigenous person to practice law in the Maritimes. In 1991, he was appointed as a provincial court judge in New Brunswick, becoming the first Indigenous provincial court judge in the province. In 2009, he made history again when he was appointed 30th lieutenant governor of New Brunswick, becoming the first Indigenous person to hold the office. Shortly after concluding his five-year term, he was named endowed chair in native studies at St. Thomas University, a position he currently holds.

Joseph Pitawanakwat

Joseph Pitawanakwat is an Ojibway educator from Wikwemikong Unceded Indian Territory on Manitoulin Island, Ontario. Specializing in plant-based medicine, his teachings have reached 40 countries and been translated in more than 25 different languages, changing how people think about medicine. He is the founder and director of Creators Garden, an Indigenous outdoor-education based business, that focuses on plant identification, sustainable harvesting, and teaching their linguistic, historical, cultural, edible, ecological and medicinal significance through experience. He introduced to academia the legitimization of an ancient interpretive technique called “The Doctrine of Signatures,” developed curriculum and has lectured in 20 universities and 12 colleges across Canada and the United States.

Rose Prince

Born: August 1915, Fort St. James, British Columbia

Death: August 19, 1949

From the age of six until her death, Rose Prince lived at Lejac Residential School. Though English was the only language permitted at the school, Rose translated hymns and prayers into her first language, Dakelh, and were used by the students and sisters at the school. In 1951, several graves on the school grounds were moved, including Rose's, and her body was found to be still perfectly preserved.

Rose Prince, though not yet a saint, has become an object of local devotion. Many regard her as a saint, with signs and wonders supporting this belief and physical healings being reported. Additionally, many people report experiencing a sense of peace after visiting her grave.

For more information, including a planned pilgrimage to her grave, visit pgdiocese.bc.ca/lejac/.

Thomas George "Tommy" Prince

Born: October 1915, Petersfield, Manitoba

Death: 1977

At age five, Tommy Prince was forced to leave his community to attend Elkhorn Residential School, where he joined the cadet corps. "Tommy Prince was a prominent Anishinaabe activist and veteran whose brave and tragic life has long held popular resonance. His story is one of the most widely known examples of the wartime contributions of First Nations soldiers in the mid-20th century, and the poor treatment they received upon their return to civilian life in Canada. His accomplishments attracted national media attention during his lifetime and earned him a great many posthumous tributes..." (Parks Canada).

"After the war, he agreed to serve as spokesperson and vice-president of the Manitoba Indian Association and appeared on its behalf before a Special Joint Committee of the Senate and House of Commons, tasked with studying the Indian Act. During his testimony in 1947, he advocated for the abolition of the Indian Act and respect for existing treaties, and presented submissions from First Nations in Manitoba, which called for improved schools, better living conditions, and expanded hunting, trapping, and fishing rights... Military service took a heavy toll on his health and, following his honourable discharge from the army, he faced a difficult return to civilian life in Manitoba. Tommy Prince endured discrimination, illness, and poverty in the years that followed" (ibid).

The Honourable Murray Sinclair

Born: January 24, 1951

Spirit Name: Mizhana Gheezhik (The One Who Speaks of Pictures in the Sky)

Member: Peguis First Nation (Anishinaabe)

The Hon. Murray Sinclair is “a Fourth Degree Chief of the Midewiwin Society, a traditional healing and spiritual society of the Anishinaabe Nation responsible for protecting the teachings, ceremonies, laws, and history of the Anishinaabe... [He] graduated from law school in 1979. He has been involved with the justice system in Manitoba for over 40 years, first as a lawyer representing Indigenous clients, as an Adjunct Professor of Law at Robson Hall, as Associate Chief Judge of Manitoba’s Provincial Court and as a Justice of the Court of Queen’s Bench. He was the first Indigenous Judge appointed in Manitoba and Canada’s second.

“He served as Co-Chair of the Aboriginal Justice Inquiry of Manitoba and as Chief Commissioner of Canada’s Indian Residential Schools Truth and Reconciliation Commission

(TRC). As head of the TRC, he participated in hundreds of hearings across Canada, culminating in the TRC’s widely influential report in 2015. He also oversaw an active multi-million-dollar fundraising program to support various TRC events and activities, and to allow survivors to travel to attend TRC events. In 2017 Governor General Julie Payette awarded him and the other TRC Commissioners the Meritorious Service Cross (Civilian) (MSC) for service to Canada for their work on the TRC... He has won numerous awards, including the National Aboriginal Achievement Award, the Manitoba Bar Association’s Equality Award (2001), its Distinguished Service Award (2016) and the CBA President’s medal (2018). He has been named as one of Canada’s Indigenous People’s Counsel (IPC) by the Indigenous Bar Association” (Wícihitowin Indigenous Engagement Conference).

Spirit Name: Megisique (Eagle Woman)

Sr. Eva Solomon is an Anishinaabe from an Ojibway community in Northern Ontario. She is committed to the development of a truly Indigenous Catholic church and is a member of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Sault Ste. Marie. Recognized as a leader in Anishinaabe spiritual tradition, Sr. Solomon developed a pious association, The Companions of Kateri Tekakwitha, and created a 13-part series on the “Kateri Movement.” The series aired nationally on VisionTV and in the Eastern United States. She is a sacred pipe carrier and conductor of the sweat lodge and other ceremonies.

Born: 1656, New York, United States

Died: April 17, 1680, Kahnawake, Canada

Place of burial: St. Frances Xavier Mission Catholic Church, Kahnawake, Canada

Feast Day: July 14th

Kateri Tekakwitha is a Mohawk saint. “Harassed, stoned, and threatened with torture in her home village, she fled 200 miles (320 km) to the Christian mission of St. Francis Xavier at Sault Saint-Louis, near Montreal. There she came to be known as the ‘Lily of the Mohawks’ in recognition of her kindness, prayer, faith, and heroic suffering” (Mario Alexis Portella).

Jesuit missionary Jacques de Lamberville and fellow missionaries contributed to the documentation necessary for Kateri Tekakwitha’s beatification, which began in 1932 and was proclaimed by Pope John Paul II in 1980. After evaluating the testimony of a young boy who claimed that his infection with flesh-eating bacteria disappeared after he prayed for her intercession, Pope Benedict XVI recognized Kateri Tekakwitha in December 2011 as a saint, and she was canonized the following October.
